Ready for Hurricane Season? Polycarbonate See-Through Protection

Be ready for hurricane season 'before' it begins. Now is the time to prepare for severe weather before it hits its peak this summer.

Protecting your home or business will minimize damage and help lower insurance premiums. Whether you are looking for a residential or commercial solution, there are many storm protection options available.

Hurricane shutters, or storm shutters, are primarily made from aluminum, steel, or polycarbonate. The best choice depends on your climate, budget, and aesthetic needs.

Polycarbonate storm panels offer a unique combination of high-impact strength and transparency, making them a great alternative to metal shutters or plywood.

- Natural Light & Visibility
- Excellent Impact Resistance
- Lightweight & Easy to Install
- Long-Term Durability
- Curb Appeal

National hurricane preparedness week is May 3 - 9 this year.

HURRIGAL™ Polycarbonate Storm Panel

Reusable for years, HURRIGAL™ storm panels are extremely durable and impact resistant, offering superior storm protection. Unlike plywood or metal, polycarbonate lets the natural light in and reduces that 'caged-in' feeling of being boarded up.

What are Flutes? Traps Air & Provides Insulation

A: Multiwall polycarbonate flutes are hollow, rectangular 'channels or ribs' that run the length of the panel, providing structural strength and thermal insulation. These flutes trap air, creating an insulating barrier.
